

כasher ngen ash er oron leutz b'et ha'ivrit sheh tchaim la'revut ha'mashkilot shel yonibers emad le'fani la'rik ha'zor ha'hol' v'neber ba'otiot ha'zot ba'shi'i ha'shpot li'simush ba'zot ha'beliti posuk shel d'bari d'pos zo' le'soniim.

bolot u'od yoter h'ya ha'ch'sron bas'drot ao'tiot ub'r'i'ot ba'ulot uz'ob p'shot v'moderni sheh t'hina um zat k'lota l'kri'ah v'ba'ulot mashkilot ha'mafshrim chirupim me'go'anim.

ao'tiot al'ou u'zbcu tor ha'tch'sbot mi'oyadat bat'fekid ha'ch'sob sh'is l'thalici ha'zelom ba'thusiyot ha'grafiyot b'nnot z'mano.

אַבְגָּדְהָזֶחֶטִּיכְלָמְנָס עַפְצָקְרָשְׁתְּרָם זֶרֶץ
אַבְגָּדְהָזֶחֶטִּיכְלָמְנָס עַפְצָקְרָשְׁתְּרָם זֶרֶץ
אַבְגָּדְהָזֶחֶטִּיכְלָמְנָס עַפְצָקְרָשְׁתְּרָם זֶרֶץ

In designing the Hebrew equivalent of Univers in its four basic weights, Asher Oron intended to fill the need created by a growing number of printed matter in two languages, and at the same time to provide the Hebrew printer with a modern and versatile type face.